

2009 Teacher of the Year Finalists 2009 CEAO Teacher of the Year Finalists

Raymond Joyal, Louis Bromfield High School, Buckeye United School District has been teaching biology and GED science since 2006. Raymond's credentials include a Bachelor's degree in Biological Science from the University of Rhode Island with supplemental education in teaching chemistry and physics from Hollins College, Roanoke, Virginia. Raymond has been teaching science since 1980. He has taught biology, anatomy & physiology, chemistry, physics, and microbiology. He founded the Ohio not for profit Science Labs & Camps organization through which he has held week long science camps bringing the excitement of learning science to many students and parents. He has been a tutor for the New Beginning's Drug and Alcohol program and a naturalist for the Mohican Outdoor School.